TWO FROM HERE ATTEND STATE 4-H ELECTRIC CONGRESS IN RICHMOND

Sammy Ferguson and Shawn Mabley, Appomattox County 4-H Club members, are attending the State 4-H Electric Congress in Richmond this week.

Sammy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, Route 1, Appomattox, and Shawn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mabley, of Route 1, Appomattox, were announced by Deibert L. Whitehead, Assistant County Agent and Mrs. Ella S. Anderson, Home Demonstration Agent, as winners of the Appomattox County 4-H Electric project. These two club members, escorted by Mr. Whitehead, will spend two days at John Marshall Hotel along with the county winners throughout the state Their expense - free trip is sponsored by the electric power companies in Virginia.

Sammy and Shawn won out of 39 club members taking the project. Among the requirements to complete the electric project were: to repair frayed electric cords, build a lamp or convert kerosene lamp to electric, learn to read electric meter, care for farm and home electrical equipment, and to take an electric tour where electricity is used to a maximum extent.

The 4-H electric project has grown more rapidly in Virginia during the past five years than any other project in number of club members taking the project. This enthusiasm has manifested itself in Appomattox, and county club members are looking to another year when they'll "Make the Best Better."

SHEEP OUTLOOK FAVORABLE FOR VIRGINIA FARMERS

Virginia farmers looking for a livestock enterprise to bolster their farm income will do well to consider sheep.

George A. Allen, Jr., associate animal husbandman at VPI, says no livestock enterprise open to Virginia offers as much return per dollar invested as does a flock of sheep.

Sheep do not require a high capital investment and fit well with nearly all farm operations. Another talking point for them, Allen says, is that since sheep numbers in the nation are low, the market outlook for lambs and wool is good. Natural farm conditions in Virginia are practically ideal for raising lamb production.

Although a good pasture program is an essential first step with sheep, no large capital investment is necesary for barns or other equipment. For many farmers the cost of the flock has been returned by the lamb and wool crop of the first year.

One of the more common combinations is beef cattle and sheep, because the two together make better use of pasture. Sheep will eat most of the weeds that grow in pastures and cattle will graze grasses sheep will leave.

Since most of the lamb crop can be marketed by June 15, livestock numbers are reduced by the time hot weather comes and pastures slow up. This means the heavy surplus spring pasture growth is used and marketed to good advantage.

GROUND SPRAYS MAY SOME DAY CONTROL ORCHARD MICE

Ground sprays may someday be the answer to one of the fruit grower's primary problems — orchard mice.

In tests conducted at VPI Agri-Frank Horsfall, endrin and dieldrin, organic chlorine compounds, have totally eliminated pine-mouse activity over sizeable areas. Several chemicals have been tried but endrin has shown the only consistent cultural Experiment Station by Dr. total effect. Horsfall used it in a boom spray at the rate of 2½ pounds per acre.

So far, the tests indicate that the ground cover (grasses, etc.) must be thinner than is usually found, or the spray rate increased above that used by the researchers, to get dependable control.

Ground-sprayed rodenticides are probably effective only when they reach the trail systems and feed of the pests, Dr. Horsfall says. Users need to know well the typical pattern of trail ditribution under and near trees.

Dr. Horsfall thinks any high-pressure rig with enough capacity to care for the area of the orchard can be adapted to work. A multiple nozzle boom reduces the danger to man. Another requirement is a forceful down-drive of the spray to strike through the litter protecting the mouse trail. Since pine trees feed under, not above the cover, air-blast machines are not well suited to trail spraying.

In the tests, the chemicals were applied with a horizontal boom carried 18 inches above the ground. The boom had 28 nozzles spaced 4.5 inches apart. A "crazy wheel" supports the outer end of the boom which is attached to the front bumper of a truck. A rear brace to the middle of the truck frame maintains the boom in position. It was attached to the truck by trailer hitches.

Pressure was 550 pounds per square inch through a No. 4 disc. To give greater drive, a 1/8 inch center hole was drilled in each vortex plate. One pound of actural endrine in emulsifiable form used in each 180 gallon To apply 2½ pounds of drine, 450 gallons of sp applied in about 2½ Endrin applications one pound of the chem acre, which are used trol, do not expose the to any appreciable hazard ever, the higher rates pine mice call for caution. Every effort must to avoid skin contact with the concentrated must stay away from spr and remove spray-dosing as soon as possible.

The Appomattox Blue Hornets will open their 1954 football season on Friday night at 8:00 o'clock when they play a strong Bassett High School team at the Town Park.

Outbreak of Blackleg Reported; Immediate Vaccination Urged

Supervisors Request Drought Area Designation

The Appomattox County Board of Supervisors, in regular monthly session, yesterday adopted a resolution requesting the Governor to list Appomattox in the Drouth Emergency Area. Similar steps were taken last year. The drouth this year is considered equally severe as that of 1953.

County Agent R. E. Hudgins today advised cattle owners to have their young stock vaccinated immediately for blackleg. He stated that within the past week there have been two very severe outbreaks of blackleg in young cattle in this county.

Normally, blackleg strikes in the spring and fall. This year finds the outbreak coming in hot summer, and the attacks have been from a very strong germ. Dr. Samuel B. Guss Lynchburg veterinarian, was in the county Monday and suggested that all livestock producers be advised to vaccinate calves immediately.

If a calf is vaccinated at age of under three months and then the vaccination is repeated at five to six months, the animal will have life time immunity. Mr. Hudgins stated that in the past few years he has placed the vaccination needles with a number of producers in the county and that the serum is available locally.

He cited a case of one producer who lost six head of young cattle last week, because he had skipped one year in his vaccination program.

Mr. Hudgins declared, "I advise every cattle producer to vaccinate his young calves at once."

Dr. David A. Christian, III, was elected president of the Appomattox "IPTAY" Club, at a meeting held last Friday evening at the Appomattox High School auditorium.

Secretary and treasurer, Burke Guill.

Directors were named as follows

The Appomattox Lions Club will meet at 6:45 P. M. tonight at Maud's Hut.

ASC Ballots Mailed to Farmers For Election of Committeemen

Ballots have been mailed to farmers for voting for ASC community committeemen, C. C. Harvey, ASC County Committee Chairman, announced today.

Farmers should vote for five persons — either those listed as nominees, or others who may be written in on blank spaces on the ballot.

Ballots must be mailed or returned to the County ASC office so as to be received by no later than September 23, if they are to be counted.

Farmers are eligible to vote who are of legal voting age, and who have an interest in a farm on which one of the approved ACP practices is being carried out this year, or who are eligible for a cooperator's loan or other price supports. In addition, persons under voting age may vote if they are in charge of a farming operations on the entire farm.

Mr. Harvey announced that because county office records are incomplete for tenants and sharecroppers there may be a few farmers eligible to vote to whom ballots have not been mailed. Persons who believe they are eligible to vote and who fail to receive ballots in the mails, may apply for ballots at the ASC county office, giving information necessary to establish eligibility to vote at the same time.

Harvey urged all farmers to vote pointing out that committeemen will have important roles in the administration of ACP, Marketing Quota and Price Support programs With additional Marketing Quota programs in operation and the new cross-compliance provisions, ASC programs will be of vital importance to almost every farm in the county, and the necessity of having good committeemen to administer these programs cannot be over-emphasized.

Chairman Harvey also announced that applications for appointment as office manager are being received at the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office by the ASC county committee. Applications will be received until 5:00 P. M. September 30, 1954.

Local Boys Report For Football Practice at VPI

Blacksburg, Va., Sept. 8.- (Special to Times-Virginian) Three Appomattox students have reported to Coach Frank Moseley for the beginning of fall football practice at Virginia Tech.

They are Bill Jamerson, varsity tackler from Woodson, freshman tackle, and Fred Carr, varsity football manager.

Jamerson, 195-pound junior, is counted on heavily by Coach Moseley for action this season. He will undoubtedly play in the opening game against North Carolina State here September 18. Line Coach Alf Satterfield and Coach Moseley expect Jamerson to develop into a regular by the time he is a senior.

Woodson reported to Freshman Coach Dick Redding on Labor Day. A big, strong aggressive player, he won four varsity high school letters, and captained the Appomattox team in 1952 and 1953. The Tech freshmen will open their season at Marion on September 30 against the Emory and Henry junior varsity.

Carr, a sophomore, is a valuable addition to the varsity squad as manager. He earned the post through hard work and eagerness and is chief aide to Forest King, the senior manager.

County Schools Opened Today

The school buses were running today, as Appomattox County public schools began the 1954-56 session. Teachers yesterday concluded two days of pre-opening meetings, ending with the teachers going to their home rooms in the various schools to check last-minute plans for today's opening.

Sessions of schools today and tomorrow will find enrollment as the prime activity, coupled with checking schedules, assignments to classes and a study of book lists. By Monday, it is hoped that the routine of regular study will be in full operation.

Conditions are expected to remain somewhat crowded at the Appomattox school, and this situation is likely to exist until the completion of the new elementary school building now under construction.

Town Manager C. J. Hunter had his fingers crossed today hoping that town water pressure would hold up until workmen could get a pump installed to carry an additional supply to the water tanks. An extra well, at Hernsall's plant on Route 460 was tested last week and found to give a satisfactory flow of water to supplement the two other wells being used by the town. A new pump was ordered, and was to be installed this afternoon.

A searing heat wave, setting new temperature records for September, has lowered the water levels in the town tanks, and then the opening of public schools today greatly increases the demand for water in the town.

Mr. Hunter was hopeful that if the town could get by the first two days of school, that the increased water supply would be available by Monday, and that the danger point would be safely passed. However, a general rain is the greatest need.

Temperatures of 100 and 101 were noted here since September came in with a hot, dry and humid wave.

In rural sections, a number of farm wells were either dry or producing inadequate flows of water. Pastures were turning brown.

The water supply difficulties in the town of Appopmattox have been increasing for several years, as great increases in demand took place. New industrial water customers and many new homes hooked up with the town water lines. Water lines have been extended to a number of users outside the town limits, until finally the point was reached that the two existing wells were in danger of failing to keep up levels in the two tanks in drouth periods such as those featuring the past two years.

A new spot for a town well was decided upon a few weeks ago, but in the meantime, the Hernsall well was made available, and the town decided to use that at once to supplement flow into the tanks. Eventually the town will doubtless drill a new well on the site selected prior to the availability of the Hernsall well. If this is done, then the town should be well taken care of for the foreseeable future as to water.

Appomattox Canneries Have Produced More This Season

Folks in Appomattox County will have more to eat this winter than last. This is the indication of school community enrollment and production figures released at the end of August by Supt. J. A. Burke.

The superintendent's summary showed that for the months of July and August alone almost as much food was conserved in the Appomattox and Pamplin canneries as during the entire period of operation in 1953. During the month of August, 22,895 cans and jars were processed in the Appomattox cannery; 8,691 containers of food were preserved in the Pamplin cannery during the same month.

To date, 622 persons have enrolled in the county food preservation program this year. One of the largest amounts of food conserved by a single patron in one day was 221 cans conserved by Mrs. Ernest Jamerson at the Pamplin cannery.

"It is gratifying to note the surprisingly large number of citizens taking advantage of food preservation facilities," the superintendent said.

The number of vegetables available for canning is much larger than anticipated in view of the severe drought. It is expected that the volume of canning will remain high despite the decline in gardening conditions. Apples and sweet potatoes are expected to make up a large percentage of the food canned from now to the beginning of the meat season.

The Pamplin cannery is open each day of the week except Monday and Saturday. The Appomattox cannery operates five days per week Monday through Friday.

Bond Sales Below Quota

Sales of U. S. Savings Bonds in Appomattox County for the month of August amounted to $5,387.50. Sales of E & H Bonds for the year 1954 have amounted to $44,093.25, against a year's quota of $90,000.

Savings Bond sales in Virginia during August totaling $6,757,131 have been exceeded only once during 1954. March sales, exclusive of military credits, were slightly more than seven million dollars.
